JAPANESE CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

Every year brings us a new collection of the Queen of Autumn, and, although there are thousands of varieties in cultivation, there is a marked improvement in the newer sorts. This year we have a collection that can hardly be excelled.

Ben d'Or. Clear, golden yellow; very much incurved; as the flowers mature they wrap over, giving the appearance of a ball of gold.

George Bullock. Deep rose, very large and double; fine for exhibition purposes.

Gold. Of a clear golden yellow; very large and double; a beautiful variety.

Kinsess. Clear bright rose color; fine for exhibitions.

Lucrece. Pure white, resembling Christmas Eve, but surpassing that variety in size, form and lateness.

Mrs. Anthony Water. An immense spreading variety; when fully expanded, the flower has the appearance of a bunch of white ribbon.

Mrs. C. H. Wheeler. Fine large flowers, much incurved; color, deep red; reverse of petals, old gold.

Mount Blanc. An immense, large variety, flowering late, and remaining in flower a long time.

Stars and Stripes. An exceedingly distinct variety; large flowers, of a deep carmine color; the under petals fold, which gives it the appearance of being striped.

W. M. Singerly. Color, glossy carmine; certainly the best of its color, and a sort that can be used for all purposes. Price, 15 cents each, or the 10 varieties for $1.25
